ABSTRACT

An organic electroluminescent device comprising: an organic thinfilm transistor element including at least an active layer made of an organic material; and an organic electroluminescent element driven by the organic thin-film transistor element.

Fig. 1